in the age of complex tv of social networking and massive consumption of transmedia narratives a myriad short lived phenomena surround films and tv programs raising questions about the endurance of a fictional world and other mediatized discourse over a long arc of time the life of media products can change direction depending on the variability of paratextual materials and activities such as online commentaries and forums promos and trailers disposable merchandise and gadgets grassroots video production archives and gaming this book examines the tension between permanence and obsolescence in the production and experience of media byproducts analysing the affections and meanings they convey and uncovering the machineries of their persistence or disposal paratexts which have long been considered only ancillary to a central text interfere instead with textual politics by influencing the viewers fidelity or infidelity to a product and affecting a fictional world s life expectancy scholars in the fields of film studies media studies memory and cultural studies are here called to observe these byproducts temporalities their short form and or long temporal extention their nostalgic politics or future projections and assess their increasing influence on our use of the past and present on our temporal experience and consequently on our social and political self positioning through the media over the past decade as digital media has expanded and print outlets have declined pundits have bemoaned a crisis of criticism and mourned the death of the critic now that well paying jobs in film criticism have largely evaporated while blogs message boards and social media have given new meaning to the saying that everyone s a critic urgent questions have emerged about the status and purpose of film criticism in the twenty first century in film criticism in the digital age ten scholars from across the globe come together to consider whether we are witnessing the extinction of serious film criticism or seeing the start of its rebirth in a new form drawing from a wide variety of case studies and methodological perspectives the book s contributors find many signs of the film critic s declining clout but they also locate surprising examples of how critics whether moonlighting bloggers or salaried writers have been able to intervene in current popular discourse about arts and culture in addition to collecting a plethora of scholarly perspectives film criticism in the digital age includes statements from key bloggers and print critics like armond white and nick james neither an uncritical celebration of digital culture nor a jeremiad against it this anthology offers a comprehensive look at the challenges and possibilities that the internet brings to the evaluation promotion and explanation of artistic works
