over the past thirty years the history of technology has been so extensively renewed that many once canonical narratives have been invalidated this collective work takes account of several of these major recompositions ancient periods were never eras of technical stagnation techniques are not diffused but interpenetrate and reinvent themselves as they travel invention is not an individual epiphany but a gradual and often collective process far from neutral the material is endowed with its own agentivity the notions of capitalism gender and the environment are fertile contributions to the history of techniques and have served to invalidate many naiveties these recent works have put an end to the discontinuous vision of a history made up of straightforward technical ruptures in favor of more complex descriptions that provide a better grasp of the real dynamics of today's world many chapters articulate new detailed methods of doing history of philosophy these present conflicting visions of the history of philosophy as an autonomous sub discipline of professional philosophy the essays collected together in this volume originated with a symposium which addressed a variety of issues associated with the publications of professor wh dray in the philosophy of history in this expanded version of the original symposium to which professor dray has provided a critical response a group of prominent philosophers and historians address the central questions posed by contemporary philosophy of history such as the logic and methodology of historical explanation the selection and uses of evidence the fact value relationship the nature of historical causation the question of conflicting interpretations and their possible resolution the idea of history as a school of practical wisdom and the question whether history has any discernable pattern or meaning these issues are approached from the experience of both historians and philosophers and represent an important increment to the long standing and continuing debates concerning the nature and aims of the practice and philosophy of history addressing a wide range of topics from newton to post kuhnian philosophy of science these essays critically examine themes that have been central to the influential work of philosopher michael friedman special focus is given to friedman's revealing study of both history of science and philosophy in his work on kant newton einstein and other major figures this interaction of history and philosophy is the subject of the editors manifesto and serves to both explain and promote the essential ties between two disciplines usually regarded as unrelated the pimlico history significantly broadens the scope of western philosophy to reveal the influence of middle eastern and asian thought the vital contributions of jewish and islamic philosophers and the role of women within the tradition popkin also emphasizes schools and developments that have traditionally been overlooked sections on plato and aristotle are followed by a detailed presentation on hellenistic philosophy and its influence on the modern developments of materialism and scepticism another chapter considers renaissance philosophy and its seminal influence on modern humanism and science turning to the modern era the contributors give equal attention to both sides of the current rift in philosophy between continental and analytic schools charting the development of each right to the end of the twentieth century each chapter includes an introductory essay and popkin provides notes that draw connections among the separate articles the rich bibliographic information and the indexes of names and terms make the volume a valuable resource combining a broad scope and penetrating analysis with a keen sense of what is relevant for the modern reader the book provides an accessible intro for students and general read how does history relate to the past according to leading historical theorists the relation to the past in history is reducible to evidential psychological practical and retrospective concerns in contrast this volume claims that historical relations to the past are irreducible products of the logical commitments of history as method ahlskog argues that the method of history shapes and enables relations to past in historical research by invoking past perspectives of meaning for rendering reality intelligible the book provides a much needed philosophical clarification of key concepts in one of the most fundamental debates within the humanities
