a family in the saint henri slums of montreal struggles to overcome poverty and ignorance while searching for love a literary exploration of gabrielle roy and his first novel the tin flute canadian fiction studies are an answer to every librarian s student s and teacher s wishes each book contains clear information on a major canadian novel these studies are carefully designed readings of the novels they are not substitutes for reading them each book is attractively produced and includes a chronology of the author s life information on the importance of the book and its critical reception an analysis of the text and a selected list of works cited new edition of classic study includes lorenzo s three addenda and new bibliographic and biographic material this illustrated biography highlights three pivotal phases in gabrielle roy s life and development as an author her first twenty seven years which were spent growing up with her family in manitoba her two year stay in france and england in the late 1930s and her return from europe to live in montreal it was in this last period that roy honed her craft and through her travels across the country learned about the canada she came to describe in ways that altered the course of canadian literature although the infant has been a consistent figure in literature and for many people a significant figure in personal life there s been little attention focused on infants or on their place in canadian fiction until now in this book sandra sabatini examines canadian fiction to trace the ideological charge behind the represented infant examining writers from l m montgomery and frederick philip grove to thomas king and terry griggs sabatini compares women s writing about babies with the way infants appear in texts by men over the course of a century she discovers a range of changing attitudes toward babies after being seen as a source of financial burden social shame or sentimental fantasy infants have increasingly become a source of value and meaning the book challenges the perception of babies as passive objects of care and argues for a reading of the infant as a subject in itself it also reflects upon how the representations of infancy in canadian literature offer an intriguing portrait of how we imagine ourselves a student at mcgill in the mid 1950s marian engel wrote her m a thesis under the direction of hugh maclennan their work together became the basis of a correspondence the maclennan half of which survives and is detailed here both personal and professional in nature maclennan s letters to engel provide fascinating insights into his life s pursuit of writing and offer another glimpse of the author of two solitudes published in english the pivotal work within the literary corpus of both antoine de saint exupéry and gabrielle roy each significantly bears the title terre des hommes saint exupéry encapsulates the results of a searching existential and humanist enquiry into a récit 1939 and roy her similar findings into a thirty page essay commissioned to introduce the 1967 Montréal world exposition itself named terre des hommes these pieces of writing and the development of their key themes in other texts lend themselves eminently to comparison for through roy s essay we learn of her specific attraction to the exupérian ethos of l homme self and man s interaction with la terre non self the present study aims principally to detect the presence of these essences in each author's work in a subsidiary way it also endeavours to situate their rationals within a certain historico literary context finally an attempt is made to critically assess especially Roy's distinctive representation through literature of the self and the exterior world

Canadian literature in English presents a wealth of imaginative experience that belies the colonial status sometimes accorded the world's second largest country this revised and expanded edition of major Canadian authors provides an entrance into that realm Stouck's carefully integrated essays introduce the life and writings of eighteen foremost Canadian authors including Robertson Davies Margaret Laurence Sinclair Ross and Alice Munro the second edition adds a new chapter on Margaret Atwood updates the text and expands the reference guide to include more than sixty Canadian authors sixteen short stories most of which are set in Alberta or the Yukon territories
