film making is a collaborative business and when it comes to the way a film looks the critical relationship is that between the director and the cinematographer now often called the director of photography whose role in the enterprise is too often undervalued if not wholly overlooked yet as his book shows the cinematographer's contribution to many great movies has been both vital and distinctive and director cinematographer partnerships such as those between david lean and freddie young or ingmar bergman and Sven Nykvist have played a significant role in the history of the cinema. This book systematically examines and documents the technical and creative role of the cinematographer in European cinema over the past 100 years. It has been compiled under the aegis of the Association of European Cinematographers (Simago) and the contributors include many distinguished figures in European cinema history such as the director Bernardo Bertolucci, the actor Marcello Mastroianni, cinematographers Sven Nykvist, Jack Cardiff, and Giuseppe Rotunno, and a number of leading film historians. Individual contributions cover a wealth of information, theory, diagrams, and tables on all aspects of cinematography, widely recognised as the cinematographer's bible. The book is organised in a unique manner for easy reference on location and remains an essential component of the cameraman's box. Everything you need to know about cinematography can be found in this book, from camera choice, maintenance, and threading diagrams to electricity on location, equipment checklists, film stock, lenses, light and colour of particular use, will be the mathematics formulae, look up tables, and step-by-step examples used for everything from imperial metric conversions to electricity, exposure, film length, running times, lights, and optics. Sections on special effects and utilities are also included, as well as a list of useful websites. David Samuelson is a well-known and respected cameraman who has been instrumental in fostering award-winning new technical innovations. He is a technical consultant, lecturer, and author of three other leading publications for Focal Press: The Panaflex User's Manual, 2nd Edition Motion Picture Camera and Lighting Equipment, and Motion Picture Camera Techniques.

Although cinematographers are vital to the filmmaking process, they don't always get the recognition they deserve. Directors of cinematography often are responsible for the look of a film and its lasting impression on the viewer, but their skills are not as readily appreciated as those of directors or screenwriters. David Ellis had the privilege of meeting with a number of accomplished cinematographers to discuss their art and craft. In Conversation with Cinematographers, features interviews with 21 directors of photography, as well as two notable camera operators, most of whom still work in film and television today. In this volume, readers are taken behind the scenes of some of the most successful films and shows of the last several decades. Interviewed in this book are
