contemporary theologians tracing trends and discerning directions in today's theological landscape the new priests of St Joseph Pontifical Seminary always of the year 2006 2007 are the primary contributors to this volume

In a postsecular cultural situation the conditions for understanding and communicating a Christian tradition have changed none of the established religions can any longer claim monopoly in the marketplace of religions a claim of this study is that a postsecular situation characterized among other things by dwindling memberships in established churches as well as a new visibility of alternative religious expressions opens up a need to reflect on alternative ways of understanding Christianity in its context this study focuses on the question how can a Christian tradition be communicated understandably in a postsecular context in traditional terms how can Christian witness be understood in our situation it is to this need according to this study that the ecclesiology of Stanley Hauerwas provides a meaningful perspective this perspective becomes relevant because in a postsecular context a Christian church even a folk church cannot assume to be in a position of majority or power there is therefore a need to ask how to understand Christianity as a community of witness that is neither in power nor a majority the study suggests that embodiment of Christian convictions becomes a central factor in a meaningful postsecular notion of witness illuminates Paul's letters by creating fascinating links between Pauline scholarship and the writings of postliberals such as Stanley Hauerwas and John Howard Yoder
