for over a decade the uk has been engaged in a radical reform of its vocational education and training this book contains the first comprehensive description of functional analysis the method developed to define occupational standards and national vocational qualifications it also discusses changes in contemporary work patterns arguing that a new model of occupational competence is needed the job competence model the text is in four parts covering strategy models and methodologies and how to apply them in practice both authors have both been closely associated with the methods and models described in the book and their personal insights add enormously to the value of the material free and informed consent is one of the most widespread and morally important practices of modern health care competence to consent is its cornerstone in this book becky cox white provides a concise introduction to the key practical philosophical and moral issues involved in competence to consent the goals of informed consent respect for patient autonomy and provision of beneficent care cannot be met without a competent patient thus determining a patient s competence is the critical first step to informed consent determining competence depends on defining it yet surprisingly no widely accepted definition of competence exists white identifies nine capacities that patients must exhibit to be competent she approaches the problem from the task oriented nature of decision making and focuses on the problems of defining competence within clinical practice her proposed definition is based on understanding competence as occurring in a special rather than a general context as occurring in degrees rather than at a precise threshold as independent of consequential appeals and as incorporating affective as well as cognitive capacities combining both an ethical overview and practical guidelines this book will be of value to health care professionals bioethicists and lawyers what is it that makes a counsellor or psychotherapist competent in competence and self care in counselling and psychotherapy gerrie hughes offers a framework for understanding what being competent means for individual practitioners both generally and in moment by moment work with clients divided into two sections part one the competent self and part two care of the self the book explores care and replenishment of the self as an essential requirement for maintaining competence the competence framework presented here suggests that the three elements of practitioner client and context are essential factors for making good therapeutic choices as well as offering a structure for reflection either individually or in supervision the eight principles that elaborate on these elements provide a route to explore competence that is relevant for any theoretical orientation and appropriate for practitioners at any stage the reader is encouraged to make their own exploration of a number of factors that influence competence and to identify development of the self as both a necessary preparation for therapeutic work and as a continuing outcome of being a therapist in addition hughes emphasises the importance of having a sound ethical framework and utilising professional structures as well as examining the contribution of supervision to the development and maintenance of competence this book is an ideal choice for counsellors psychotherapists supervisors and trainers who wish to maintain a robust standard of practice and for those employing them
