in today s complex and interconnected world scholars of international relations seek to better understand challenges spurred by intensified global communication and interaction the complex connectedness of modern society and politics compels us to investigate the pattern of interconnections among actors who inhabit social and political spaces gabriella paar jákli s study aims to advance theory and practice by examining the networks used by specialists in north america and europe to achieve their policy goals in the area of science and technology her book suggests that to overcome policy problems transnationally three critical factors should be considered first as science and technology policy becomes increasingly critical to resolving global issues it should be regarded as an integral element of the foreign policy process second as liberal international relations theory argues the increasing role of ngos must be taken seriously alongside states as vital agents of policy reform third as transatlantic relations remain center to maintaining the global order they must be reconsidered paar jakli assesses the role of digital networks as facilitators of regional cooperation utilizing various techniques of social network analysis her research indicates an active and structurally discernible network in cyberspace among transatlantic organizations and demonstrates the role of virtual networks as facilitators of cooperative arrangements in transatlantic relations paar jákli s original research uses social network analysis to investigate transatlantic cooperation a new approach that will be noteworthy to network and transatlantic scholars as well as policymakers
