this first volume presenting research carried out through the exeter a place in time project provides a synthesis of the development of exeter within its local regional national and international hinterlands exeter began life in c ad 55 as one of the most important legionary bases within early roman britain and for two brief periods in the early and late 60s ad exeter was a critical centre of roman power within the new province when the legion moved to wales the fortress was converted into the civitas capital for the dumnonii its development as a town was however relatively slow reflecting the gradual pace at which the region as a whole adapted to being part of the roman world the only evidence we have for occupation within exeter between the 5th and 8th centuries is for a church in what was later to become the cathedral close in the late 9th century however exeter became a defended burh and this was followed by the revival of urban life exeter s wealth was in part derived from its central role in the south west s tin industry and by the late 10th century exeter was the fifth most productive mint in england exeter s importance continued to grow as it became an episcopal and royal centre and excavations within exeter have revealed important material culture assemblages that reflect its role as an international port scotland s maritime heritage is a highly significant one embracing as it does a quite outstanding contribution to britain s development both as an empire and as the world s leading maritime power in the nineteenth century scottish engineering ship owning and operating as well as business and entrepreneurial skills played a major part in the success of the merchant navy while scottish emigrants took skills to every corner of the world creating trade and wealth both abroad and at home in terms of engineering clyde built was the kitemark for the shipbuilding industry the world over scottish shipowners included household names such as allan anchor donaldson and henderson while scotsmen were instrumental in founding and for much of the time managing cunard british india p o orient glen and many other english companies the author tells an exhilarating story of energy and inventiveness describing the remarkable navigational skills of the highlanders and the technological and business skills of the lowlanders and relates the early development of the steamship the impact of emigration the involvement with exploration and the development of trade routes and the final flowering of the world s last great iron sailing ships and the evidence is still here in the cutty sark the denny test tank at dumbarton and the burrell collection at pollock all reminders of a remarkable story as seen in scottish memories magazine this volume contains reports on excavations undertaken in the lower walled city at lincoln which lies on sloping ground on the northern scarp of the witham gap and its adjacent suburbs between 1972 and 1987 and forms a companion volume to las volumes 2 and 3 which cover other parts of the historic city the earliest features encountered were discovered both near to the line of ermine street and towards broadgate remains of timber storage buildings were found probably associated with the roman legionary occupation in the later 1st century ad the earliest occupation of the hillside after the foundation of the colonia towards the end of the century consisted mainly of commercial premises modest residences and storage buildings it seems likely that the boundary of the lower enclosure was designated before it was fortified in the later 2nd century with the street pattern belonging to the earlier part of the century larger aristocratic residences came to dominate the hillside with public facilities fronting on to the line of the zigzagging main route in the 4th century the fortifications were enlarged and two new gates inserted examples of so called dark earth deposits were here dated to the very latest phases of roman occupation elements of some roman structures survived to be reused in subsequent centuries there are hints of one focus in the middle saxon period in the area of st peter s church but occupation of an urban nature did not recommence until the late 9th century with the first phases of anglo scandinavian occupation recorded here sequences of increasingly intensive occupation from the 10th century were identified with plentiful evidence for industrial activity including pottery metalworking and other crafts as well as parish churches markets were established in the 11th century and stone began to replace timber for residential structures from the mid 12th century with clear evidence of the quality of some of the houses with the decline in the city s fortunes from the late 13th century the fringe sites became depopulated and there was much rebuilding elsewhere including some fine new houses there was a further revival in the later post medieval period but much of the earlier fabric and surviving stretches of roman city wall were swept away in the 19th century cities today are paradoxical they are engines of innovation and opportunity but they are also plagued by significant income inequality and segregation by ethnicity race and class these inequalities and segregations are often reinforced by the urban built environment the planning of space and the design of architecture this condition threatens attainment of wider social and economic prosperity in this innovative new study dean saitta explores questions of urban sustainability by taking an intercultural trans historical approach to city planning saitta uses a largely untapped body of knowledge the archaeology of cities in the ancient world to generate ideas about how public space housing and civic architecture might be better designed to promote inclusion and community while also making our cities more environmentally sustainable by integrating this knowledge with knowledge generated by evolutionary studies and urban ethnography including a detailed look at denver colorado one of america s most desirable and fastest growing destination cities but one that is also experiencing significant spatial segregation and gentrification saitta s book offers an invaluable new perspective for urban studies scholars and urban planning professionals
