questi versi nella loro globalità a noi sembrano da segnalare non soltanto per l armoniosa bellezza ma soprattutto per la intensità emotiva che li animano in questa nostra epoca di frettolose scritture e di ancora più frettolose letture e a lettura completata della silloge si ha la sensazione che siamo di fronte ad uno spirito inquieto che coglie e si ispira ad una realtà osservata scrutata con l occhio attento e sgombro da futili pregiudizi una realtà di coscienza e dunque fatto di cultura in cui la freschezza poetica è garantita da una genuina inesauribile capacità di stupirsi e di stupire in author under sail jay williams offers the first complete literary biography of jack london as a professional writer engaged in the labor of writing it examines the authorial imagination in london s work the use of imagination in both his fiction and nonfiction and the ways he defined imagination in the creative process in his business dealings with his publishers editors and agents in this first volume of a two volume biography williams traverses the years 1893 to 1902 from london s story of a typhoon to the people of the abyss the jack london who emerges in the pages of author under sail is a writer whose partnership with publishers most notably his productive alliance with George Brett of Macmillan was one of the most formative in American literary history. London pioneered many author models during the heyday of realism and naturalism, blurring the boundaries of these popular genres by focusing on absorption and theatricality and the representation of the seen and unseen. London created an impassioned, sincere and extremely personal realism unlike that of other American writers of the time. Author Under Sail is a literary tour de force that reveals the full range of London as writer, creative citizen and entrepreneur at the same time it sheds light on the maverick side of machine age literature.

Transnational cinemas are eclipsing national cinemas in the contemporary world and Sino-French films exemplify this phenomenon through the cinematic coupling of the Sinophone and the Francophone, linking France not just with the Chinese mainland but also with the rest of the Chinese-speaking world. Sinophone directors most often reach out to French cinema by referencing and adapting it; they set their films in Paris and metropolitan France, cast French actors and sometimes use French dialogue even when the directors themselves don't understand it. They tend to view France as mysterious, sexy and sophisticated, just as the French see China and Taiwan as exotic. As Michelle E. Bloom makes clear, many films move past a simplistic opposition between East and West and beyond orientalist and occidentalist cross-cultural interplay. Bloom focuses on films that have appeared since 2000 such as Tsai Ming-liang's What Time Is It There?, Hou Hsiao-hsien's Flight of the Red Balloon and Dai Sijie's Balzac and the Little Chinese Seamstress. She views the work of these well-known directors through a Sino-French optic, applying the tropes of métissage or biraciality, intertextuality, adaptation and remake, translation and imitation to shed new light on their work. She also calls attention to important, lesser-studied films: Taiwanese director Cheng Yu-chieh's Yang Yang, which depicts the up-and-coming Taiwanese star Sandrine Pinna as a mixed-race beauty, and Emily Tang Xiaobai's debut film Conjugation, which contrasts Paris and post-Tiananmen Square Beijing, the one an incarnation of liberty, the other a place of entrapment. Bloom's insightful analysis also probes what such films reveal about their Taiwanese and Chinese creators. Scholars have long studied Sino-French literature, but this inaugural full-length work on Sino-French cinema maps uncharted territory, offering a paradigm for understanding other cross-cultural interminglings and tools to study transnational cinema and world cinema. The Sino-French rich and multifaceted linguistically culturally and ethnically constitutes an important part of film studies francophone studies sinophone studies and myriad other fields this is a must read for students scholars and lovers of film this updated monograph deals with methanogenic endosymbionts of anaerobic protists in particular ciliates and termite flagellates and with methanogens in the gastrointestinal tracts of vertebrates and arthropods further chapters discuss the genomic consequences of living together in symbiotic associations the role of methanogens in syntrophic degradation and the function and evolution of hydrogenosomes hydrogen producing organelles of certain anaerobic protists methanogens are prokaryotic microorganisms that produce methane as an end product of a complex biochemical pathway they are strictly anaerobic archaea and occupy a wide variety of anoxic environments methanogens also thrive in the cytoplasm of anaerobic unicellular eukaryotes and in the gastrointestinal tracts of animals and humans the symbiotic methanogens in the gastrointestinal tracts of ruminants and other methanogenic mammals contribute significantly to the global methane budget especially the rumen hosts an impressive diversity of methanogens this makes this updated volume an interesting read for scientists and students in microbiology and physiology
